ORGANIZATIONS
This year has seen great progress in the Music Department of Arkansas Polytechnic College, which is growing more and more each year. At present there are three instructors in this department.

Neumon Leighton, head of the department, is serving his second year at this institution, and his supervision has caused great changes for the better in the department. He teaches piano, voice, harmony and public school music and directs the two glee clubs and the quartette.

Pauline Austin, assistant to Mr. Leighton, has done some unusually successful work in her first year with us. She teaches piano and history of music.

Marvin Williamson is one of the oldest members on the faculty in point of service. Mr. Williamson's work is confined to directing the band and orchestra, and to giving individual instructions to those training for this work.

The music department is in perfect harmony with the purpose of our institution, that of serving the people of Arkansas. It spreads the love and appreciation of music among the whole student body by means of recitals and concerts, by sponsoring student musical organizations, and by a course in music appreciation given once each week during the chapel hour. It gives thorough training to those who may wish to take up the music profession. Students who are specializing in other fields may take as much music as their course will permit. In this way the Music Department of Arkansas Polytechnic College is able to enrich and make more enjoyable the lives of people in the different communities of Arkansas by sending back to these communities young men and women who have gained musical knowledge and skill while here.

Concerts by the different student musical organizations have been given in a number of different communities during the year. Either the glee clubs, the quartette or the orchestra has given at least one program each month during the school year at some point away from the college. Other services is rendered by the department in the contributions made by the music students to the churches and other organizations of Russellville. This service is always very willingly given.

Y. M. C. A.

Although the Y. M. C. A. got off to a slow start this year, some good work has been done. Even when regular meetings were not being held, there was supervised reading going on and work of a lasting nature was being accomplished through the efforts of the leaders.

During the last semester a series of vocational talks by different students were given. These proved very popular with the group and some good discussions resulted. Other programs sponsored by different members of the Association caused a great deal of interest. The visits of Claud Nelson were very beneficial to the moral side of our campus life, and the trip to Petit Jean during the State Convention left lasting impressions on many of the fellows.

The Y. M. C. A. has closed out the 1927-28 term in good fashion, and it is predicted that next year will be the best since the first Association was organized on the Tech campus. The Christian associations are recognized for their good work, and they have the hearty co-operation of the administration and faculty.

Science Club

The Science Club was organized in September of 1922 by the men in the college who were interested in science. Its aim has ever been to foster and encourage scientific investigation and chemical research. Each year has seen progress in the Science Club, and the members have derived much good from its meetings.

Girls were not admitted into membership in the club until the following year. At that time it was decided that it was unfair for the boys to get all the benefits offered by the club, the constitution was amended, and girls may now become members in the organization with the same rights and privileges as the boys. The club has a limited membership as it strives for quality rather than quantity.

The annual social held in the fall and the fish fry held each spring are two red-letter events in the organization. These social events mean more than the mere breaking of the monotony of the everyday programs, for they give the members a chance to express their personality and leadership.

No organization in the college can boast of better loyalty from its members. All those who belong to the Science Club know that to miss one of the regular programs is to miss a number of instructive talks. The result is that the meetings are well attended.

Periclean Literary Society

Up to 1923 there was only one literary society in this institution. Early in that year the plans were changed and the Periclean Literary Society was organized. This society was comparatively small in membership, but it was large in leadership. The faithful members met each week for the purpose of becoming bigger and better men and women in a literary way.

The early members of this society held the banner high. They accomplished the task that was before them. They then passed the banner to the future Pericleans and they themselves passed out into life's great school. The high ideals which were incorporated into this organization at the first have ever been maintained and much good work has been accomplished.

Greater interest was shown by members of the Periclean Literary Society during the last semester than at any time since its organization. In view of this fact, next year should be the greatest year the Pericleans have ever had.

Debating Club

The Debating Club was organized during the school year 1924-25 under the supervision of Prof G. R. Turrentine. From the first it has proved to be one of the livest organizations on the campus, and its success has been a credit and an inspiration to its charter members.

The club has for its aim training in the art of forceful public speaking and the instilling of that art in each and every member as a factor of his college education. It has been said that one may judge a woodman by his chips. Likewise, one may judge the debating club by its speakers.

If the future may be judged on the merits of the past, it is obvious that the Debating Club in the future will continue to be a credit to its organizers and to the social life on our campus.

Home Economics Club

The Home Economics Club was not organized until last year, but its work has been outstanding from the first. The life, the hopes, the ambitions and the happiness of all the homemakers are measured by the success of home economics. Therefore, this club has a very important mission.

This club studies the vital phases of the lives of the young women, inquires into the science of right living, and discusses the right methods in sewing and cooking. It fosters practical work and establishes the ideals of usefulness which is so necessary to the happiness of our young women.

The Home Economics Club is an important factor in the Home Economics Department, and it serves to stimulate interest in this work. It assists in the development of young women as home makers, teachers, dietitians, and useful, healthful, and cheerful citizens.

The Pierian Club is a new organization at Arkansas Tech, having been started during the last semester of the present school year. It is sponsored by the English Department, and anyone showing by their record that they are especially interested in literary and the related arts is eligible for membership. Those outside of the student body who have produced some notable work in this field are eligible for honorary membership.

Although this club is the newest at Arkansas Tech, it is expected to be one of the best. It stands for high ideals of character and work. An organization of this kind is expected to lead to greater interest in the best of literature, and also to stimulate research and original composition. The programs given at the bi-weekly meetings are very instructive as well as interesting.

The Pierian Club is expected to be instrumental in future years in the publications of the student body. It can render a great service by taking the leadership of the paper and annual, and by informing the student body as to the value of these publications.

The Agri Club was organized in the spring of 1922 by a group of Arkansas Tech boys who were interested in agriculture. The aim of the club is to help raise the standards of farming in the Southland by training the young men of this institution in the most scientific methods of farming. Since the time of its organization, the Agri Club has been active and doing good work.

The important thing the Agri Club has always fostered is the development within its members of those God-given qualities of manhood that will make them willing to sacrifice and endure, for the moment, that which promises a richer inheritance to their community, state or nation.
