ADMINISTRATION
Board of Trustees

J. S. Turner, Ozark, Chairman . . . . . . . . March 31, 1937

Mrs. Ethel Cole Cunningham, Dardanelle, Secretary . . . . . March 31, 1943

J. E. Chambers, Danville . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . March 31, 1935

Dr. R. L. Smith, Russellville . . . . . . . . . . . . . March 31, 1939

W. H. Johnson, Fort Smith . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . March 31, 1941
"The four educational schools have thoroughly established themselves in the hearts of the people by the work which they have done. They have made it possible for thousands of boys and girls to obtain a higher education of the most practical kind. In the minds of the people, their usefulness is second only to the common schools. Their future is an expanding field of development which may bring substantial changes in our present educational setup. It seems that their destinies are in the hands of very capable people. This constitutes a guarantee for the immediate future."—Governor Futrell.
“Arkansas Polytechnic College came into existence in 1909, when Governor Donaghey signed House Bill No. Two, by J. J. Bellamy, representative from Lawrence County.

In 1909 there were graduated from the high schools of Arkansas slightly more than three hundred young men and women. Each year for the past several years there have been more than 6000 young men and women finishing their high school training. This college has, during the past twenty-four years, kept a careful check on the educational needs and demands of the people of Arkansas, and has made an honest and conscientious effort to meet the demands for service.

How well this demand has been met is left to the citizens of the state and especially to the students of Arkansas Polytechnic College to decide.

The future of Arkansas Polytechnic College depends upon the character that we have built and are building in the young men and women who come our way. To you we are willing to trust the future without fear.”—President Hull.
The Dean of Men probably comes in contact with more men students than any other person on the Campus. With his office and apartment in the Men's Dormitory he is constantly aware of their problems.

The position of the Dean of Men is hard to describe, since he must give the advice of a father to some, play the part of a big brother to others, and at the same time make all understand, with the few existing rules, that their place is that of a gentleman at all times.

Dean Tucker takes part in all student activities, not merely as an observer, but with a vital interest in the welfare of the students. He is always present when needed in the dormitory and, although he makes no regular inspection, very few days pass that he cannot be found in some part of it. The clean and sanitary condition in which the dormitory has been kept, and the improvement in the personnel of the students themselves, have been to a great extent due to his efforts.
The title "Dean of Women" is very often a misleading name. The idea seems to come from the early pedagogy when the ones in charge were doing the thinking for those under their jurisdiction. It seems too often to convey the idea of spy, fault finder, generalissimo police lady.

But according to the present idea, it is an office for the benefit of girls in general. It is a position whereby Dean Bryan endeavors to help the girls think along their own lines of development and to render assistance whereby their dreams may come true. It is her desire to serve as a counselor, advisor, or helper in any way that may be of advantage to the girls. With this in mind, the women students have this year been given more privileges, and are reproved only after unlady-like conduct.

It was with the idea of development along physical, moral, intellectual, and social lines, so that their contacts should be of the most wholesome type, that the office of Dean of Women was created and is functioning today.
Faculty

The Arkansas Polytechnic College Faculty and officers of the Administration number twenty-five, some of whom, serve in both capacities. Fourteen of the twenty-five hold M. A. or M. S. degrees and most of these have done or are now doing graduate work.
The Faculty and students have this year become more closely associated, many of the members of the Faculty taking part in some or all of the student activities.
We believe that all the Faculty members have the interest of the students at heart, and we also think that in quality, they will at least equal any other in the state.

During the past year there have been added three new members, and one was lost.
Student Council

LOUIE BARNETT . . . . . President
GEORGIA ELLENBROOK . . . . Secretary

Student Government was initiated here at the beginning of the Spring Semester, 1933, and its work during the rest of that year and the year just completed has brought it a permanent place in the administering of Student Affairs.

Recognition by the Administration has allowed the Council membership on Faculty committees, thereby giving the students a voice in the school's government.

The Council was recognized this year by the National Federation of Student Councils, which invited it to send representatives to the meeting in Tuscaloosa, Alabama, in April. Because of the lack of finances this was not possible, but definite plans have been discussed that will assure Tech of representation at the next meeting.
The first year after the name of the school was changed from A. & M. to Polytechnic, school opened August 20, with the Governor present at the opening.