The Accounting Club, organized February 27, 1961, has grown from a dozen charter members to a group of twenty-three at present. During this time it has proven itself to be a very active organization.

The primary purpose of the Accounting Club is to encourage and foster the ideal of service as the basis of the accounting profession; to promote the study of accountancy and its highest ethical standards; to act as medium between professional men, instructors, students, and others who are interested in development of the study or profession of accountancy; to develop high moral, scholastic, and professional attainment in its members and to help students span the step from student to practitioner.

Membership is open to junior or senior accounting majors with above average grades. Initiation for new members is held in both fall and spring semesters.

The club sponsors four banquets each year with guest speakers from the various fields of accounting. The last banquet of the year is held for the accounting major alumni.

Members of the Accounting Club are enjoying one of the four banquets which they sponsor each year. Here the Club played host to the Harding Club after which they attended a Tech basketball game.
Several members of the Business Administration Club discuss their future plans for the organization under the leadership of President Charles Eberling and Sponsor Robert Roaden. The Club sponsors many informal activities each year.

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION CLUB

The Business Administration Club of Arkansas Polytechnic College is a professional club. It was organized to foster the study of business and to introduce a variety of business methods to the club members. The aim of the Business Administration Club is to provide students who are majoring in Business Administration with an association for their mutual and continued advancement through further research and practice. The purpose of the club is to aid in the development of a higher standard of commercial ethics for the civic and commercial welfare of the community.

Membership in this club consists of three classes: active, associate, and honorary. Active membership is open to those students who have completed six or more hours in Business Administration and who have met the academic standards of the club. After graduation from the college and the Division of Business Administration active members become associate members.
The Agri Club is one of the oldest and most active campus organizations. The present day club evolved from the FFA chapter that formerly represented the agriculture students in campus affairs, and operates under a constitution and by-laws drawn up by the members.

Any student enrolled in the agriculture division is eligible for membership, which is composed of active and associate members, now numbering forty-two. Students become associate members upon termination of active membership.

Participating in various programs for agricultural improvement, the club also supports a loan fund to assist worthy students. Members are offered an opportunity to develop leadership and self-expression by cooperative effort.

With its sister organization, A.H.E.A., the club sponsors Agri Day, highlighted by the Agri King and Queen coronation. The club also sponsors the annual FFA-FHA meet for state high school students.
AHEA

The A.H.E.A., sister organization to the Agri Club, is an organization for students majoring in home economics. The purpose of the club is to acquaint its members with the various phases of home economics and to provide insight into the overall program of its association with the Arkansas and National Home Economics Association.

This group gives expression to its purpose by stimulating interest in home economics and fostering the development of creative leadership in all phases of life.

Participation in state, province, and national home economics conventions constitute the principal activities of the club. This organization also acts jointly with the Agri Club in sponsoring Agri Day and the annual FFA-FHA meeting for high school students.
CARDINAL KEY

Chartered and organized in the spring of 1958, the Tech chapter of the Cardinal Key is a National Honor Society to recognize achievement in scholarship and extracurricular activities; to advance religion, patriotism and service, by affording training for leadership in the college community; to develop character by application of the Cardinal virtue to living.

Cardinal Key invites to membership junior and senior women who have proved leadership ability, good personality, character and prominence in extracurricular activities. Scholarship should be above average in order to gain admission to this organization. Last fall the club adopted red blazers and black skirts as their official uniform.

The Christmas tree lighting for the student body held just before Christmas holidays is an annual event sponsored by Cardinal Key. They assisted with the registration on Dad's Day and Homecoming, and the organizing of the Homecoming Parade.
ASSOCIATED WOMEN STUDENTS

The AWS is an association for all women students on the Tech campus. This association is the expression of the women students toward self-govern-ment. It is democratic in that the women students are represented by a chosen few on the governing council. The council is composed of the elected officers, representatives from each dormitory and each class, town representatives, house-managers and presidents of each dormitory, and any women editors of campus publications.

A student assumes greater responsibilities for her activities and has a voice in the direction of her through the functioning of this organization.

The election of the Lady of the Apple Blossom is sponsored each year by the AWS. This is the highest honor any woman at Tech may receive. The senior to whom this honor is awarded is considered by her fellow women students as the outstanding girl on campus and as the girl who has contributed most to college life during her undergraduate years.

Becky Nolen and President Sharon LaFevers help Secretary Jackie Christine with last minute business.

Interested members of the T Club look at the posted designs that have been proposed as an emblem for future club members.

"T" CLUB

The Arkansas Polytechnic "T" Club is an athletic organization which is open only to those male members of the student body who have won a letter in football, basketball, track, or baseball, and is one of the more popular and active clubs on the Tech campus. Their fund raising projects include the "Green and Gold" football and basketball games, and the sale of programs at the games held here on the Tech campus.

One of the more exciting activities of the "T" Club is the extensive program for the initiation of new members. Unfortunately, non-members on the campus catch only a passing glimpse of these fascinating activities.

Because it is the best-known and most widely-traveled campus organization, the members of the "T" Club are chiefly responsible for creating an image representative of the quality of the male students at Tech.

T Club members relax on seats in the hall of the W. O. Young Student Center and watch the passers-by "go by".

Members Day, Brewer, and Shearer listen intently to a report at weekly meeting.

BLUE KEY

The Blue Key Honor Fraternity is composed of junior and senior members of the student body who have demonstrated their leadership qualities, proven their academic superiority, and who have shown themselves to be outstanding members of this college.

This organization is very active on the campus. One of the goals each year is to provide a scholarship for an outstanding freshman male student. To obtain the funds necessary for this project they sponsor the Blue Key Variety Show which is one of the highlights of the spring semester.

One of the outstanding projects this group is responsible for is the annual high school leadership conference.
A major function sponsored by the WRA is the “Miss Tech” contest. Last May's winner is being crowned by President J. W. Hull.

A fall meeting on Parker Hill with a blazing fire and plenty of food seems to delight these WRA members.

The Women's Recreation Association seeks to achieve many goals through its yearly activities. It strives to promote a high degree of physical fitness by creating an interest in physical activities and fostering a spirit of good sportsmanship. Membership is open to every woman student on campus.

The activities of the WRA are many and varied. It sponsors intramural competition between the dormitory women. This year the club sponsored intramural basketball and soccer tournaments.

The club’s physical fitness program is further exemplified by its “Mr. Sportsman” and “Miss Arkansas Tech” contests. Mr. Sportsman is chosen by penny votes and Miss Arkansas Tech is selected according to the same criteria used in the Miss America Pageant.

The club’s social functions include weekend camping trips, other outdoor parties, and a Christmas party.
WOMEN’S PEMM CLUB

The PEMM Club was organized as a separate club on the Tech campus in 1961. Prior to this time the club had been open to both male and female members of the student body majoring or minoring in physical education. The club is interested in promoting interest among all people for physical education, to advance the cause of physical education along professional lines, and to generally broaden knowledge of the different aspects of both professional and non-professional physical activities.

The social highlight of the year for the PEMM Club is the annual picnic, at which the members of the club apply some of the things they have learned during the past year. They are responsible for putting into operation the various activities associated with an overnight camping trip.

Members of the Student Senate listen attentively as Female Vice President Tomilea Harvey presents some problems of the student body. The longest lasting problem before the Senate this year was the proposed "Student Bill of Rights," later withdrawn.

STUDENT SENATE

The Student Senate at Arkansas Tech serves as the governing body for students and acts as an intermediary between the faculty and student body. Student government for students helps to create a democratic atmosphere with all people involved benefiting from the program. Members of the Student Senate, who must campaign for their offices, gain an insight into the problems of the student body and thus thereby profit.

Besides giving the students government, the senate provides student entertainment, approves the constitutions of all campus organizations, and regulates money-making projects of campus clubs. In addition it sponsors a Leadership Conference each semester which all the campus organizations attend.

During the spring semester, the president and both the male and female vice-presidents are elected by the entire student body. Representatives to the council are elected by each division, the number of representatives being determined by the enrollment of that division. The secretary-treasurer of the Student Senate is elected by the senate itself.
STUDENT COURT

The Student Court at Arkansas Tech was established in 1958 under a provision of the Student Senate Constitution. The Court acts as a governmental agency which assumes the responsibility of taking disciplinary action against those students who have violated the ordinances as set forth by the Student Senate. The Student Court acts as a court of the First Instance and as an appellate court to the AWS Judiciary Board.

The Student Court consists of five judges who are appointed by the Student Senate, a bailiff who is appointed by the Senate but who is not a Senate member, and the Court Advisor who is the Parliamentarian of the Student Senate.

The Student Court has jurisdiction to try all students who have violated the ordinances of the Student Senate or the Board of Trustees, to decide disputes between student organizations or any other disputes arising under the Student Senate Constitution, and to interpret the Constitution. The Court also has prior jurisdiction in all cases of civil or criminal offenses committed by students of Arkansas Polytechnic College.

Prosecuting Attorney Charles Chastain points out a statement in a case to be presented before Chief Justice Martin Northup.

Student Court members — Charles Chastain, Pat Ellison, Charles Day, Martin Northup, and Ann Williamson — talk over a case which is scheduled to come before them for a hearing. Most of the cases which they hear and decide involve levying a fine if a person is guilty.
In its third year as an organized club on the Arkansas Tech campus, the Science Club has proven very beneficial both to the school as a whole and to those students who are majoring in the different fields of science. Because of the great differences within the Department of Science this club is vital to the continued development of science majors. Through the activities of the club the individual student has an opportunity to learn not only of the constant advances being made in his own field, but also of the equally exciting advances which are being made in all fields of science.

The purposes of this club are to stimulate the intellects of the club members in the varied fields of science and to bring about a greater feeling of fellowship between students who are majoring in different fields of science.

The club sponsors a variety of activities to attract and stimulate the interest of its members. Some of these activities include lectures, technical demonstrations, trips, films, and seminars.
PSYCHOLOGY CLUB

In its initial year the Psychology Club has proven itself to be a very active and beneficial club on the Arkansas Tech campus. Membership in this club is limited to psychology majors and minors or those students who have had at least nine hours of psychology.

The purpose of the Psychology Club is to further psychological insight on the campus and to give its members a better understanding of the advancements which have been made in recent years in psychology. To achieve this aim the club sponsors informal seminars, guest speakers, and trips to various institutions throughout the state. This year the club's program consisted of a trip to the Children's Colony in Conway, the Benton branch of the State Hospital, and the Rehabilitation Center in Hot Springs. Highlighting the club's activities was attendance at the neuro-psychiatric lectures which were given at Ft. Roots Veterans' Hospital in North Little Rock.

The club sponsored some social activities, such as the annual Christmas party and a pizza party.
Some members of the French Club are interested in the customs of the land whose language they are learning.

FRENCH CLUB

All students enrolled in French courses are eligible for membership in the French Club. The French Circle as the name translated, is known to be one of the more active clubs on campus.

The main purpose of the organization is for the members to obtain a general knowledge of the French culture by reading, understanding, and speaking the language.

One of the activities of the club was to sponsor the film, “The Red Balloon,” winner of the Cannes and Edinburgh International film awards. An annual project which is always received enthusiastically by the student body is the Masque Ball. Another annual project is the entering of a very outstanding float in the Homecoming Parade. Also, this past year several students saw the films, “Tartuffe” at the University of Arkansas and “The Seven Deadly Sins” at Little Rock.
LES DANSEURS

Distinguished from other clubs at Tech by their frequent appearances in black leotards, members of Les Danseurs are well-known for their interpretative dance. The membership of this organization is comprised of women students who have taken a course in modern dance.

The president of Les Danseurs has the added responsibility of performing as a soloist at the fall and spring recitals. This group endeavors to foster an understanding of modern dance, to promote fitness through dance activities, and to engage in meaningful dance experiences.

Activities for Les Danseurs this year included the bi-annual recitals, their yearly performance at the Dads' Day assembly, plus entertaining for the Dames Club Spring Tea.

These hard-working girls meet weekly on Thursday nights to practice their popular dance routines.

Fourteen members of Les Danseurs strike a group pose for the cameraman. The Club presents recitals with a spring presentation being "Walk on the Wild Side". Membership in the club is limited to those who have taken a course in the modern dance.
Membership in the Engineering and Math Club is not confined only to men. Janis Freeman is presiding over one of the club's meetings.

The Engineering and Mathematics Club is an organization which attempts to acquaint students majoring in these fields with the different job opportunities in these areas. This organization also provides many social activities for its members and for the other students of the campus.

The E & M Club sponsors the activities which take place during the week of Saint Patrick's Day. They put out a special edition of the "Arka-Tech." As a high-light of this week of activities, they sponsor a dance at which they crown the Engineers Queen. At the end of each academic year the club holds a banquet to celebrate the completion of another year of hard work and study. Membership in this organization is limited to students majoring in math or engineering. The sponsor is chosen each year from the faculty of the Engineering and Mathematics Department.
The Young Democrats Club is a political organization on the Arkansas Polytechnic campus which is open to all members of the student body who are interested in the processes of government and in the Democratic Party. The club's primary function is a political one, but it does sponsor some social activities. The club's major purpose is to promote interest in an advance understanding of the Democratic Party and the workings of government at local, state, and national levels in the United States. Its most important role is conducting campaign activities on the state level.

The club sponsors numerous speakers and political forums on the campus. The club also sent delegates to the state convention on the University of Arkansas campus this year.

The club has been intensely involved in the gubernatorial race which is reaching its height at the present time.

Of special interest to Tech students are the political debates which take place between the members of this club and the Young Republican Club.
Meetings, addressed by nationally prominent men, are held and attended by the Republicans and other interested politicians.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS

Organized in 1961 and chartered in 1962 through the Young Republican League of Arkansas, the Tech chapter of the Young Republicans’ Club was the sixth college club of such a nature organized in the state of Arkansas.

The purposes of the Young Republicans’ Club are to develop all young Republicans on the campus into an intelligent, aggressive, and cooperative Republican group; to provide through its organization a means to encourage participation in the activities of the Republican party and to provide the student body the means for getting practical political education.

Membership to this club is open to any student who wishes to participate in the club’s activities. Meetings are held monthly at which time the political beliefs of the Republican Party are discussed informally.

The club’s activities include attending a district meeting of the Young Republicans at Winrock Farm in the spring, attending the state convention in Little Rock and sponsoring a campaign rally for the Republican candidate of Arkansas. This rally is also open to any other persons seeking a public office.

Young Republicans have visited the state legislature when it is in session and hope some day to be able to elect a Republican Governor and other officials.
The Student National Education Association, an extension of the National Education Association, provides its member with opportunities for personal and professional growth; development of leadership skills; understanding of the history, ethics, and programs of the SNEA at state and national levels; and participation in professional activities, especially integrating programs of local associations and student education associations.

In their monthly meetings, the members discuss varying concepts of the responsibilities of education in today’s America and how the field of education compares to other professions.

Membership is open to any student who is enrolled in a teacher education program.

Activities of this group during the school year include the promotion of National Education Week, attendance at the state convention, and various other planned programs.
Members of the Lutheran League and Sponsor David Krueger meet in the Church's Sunday School class room to plan for various church activities.

Officers of the Lutheran League pose in front of the church's sign after attending one of the club's activities at the church.

LUTHERAN LEAGUE

The Lutheran College League of Arkansas Tech is an organization which provides worship services and opportunities for religious development for the Lutheran students on campus. It was organized in 1962. Every week a candlelight worship service is held for those students who wish to attend. The pastor of the local Lutheran Church serves as the worship director. This service is followed by group singing. The League also sponsors recreational activities such as hayrides and bowling parties for the members.

Regular meetings usually consist of informal discussions of a religious nature. These discussions are often supplemented by films. The activities of this organization consist of Caroling each year at Christmas meetings which feature guest speakers, and are climaxed by an annual banquet which takes place during the spring semester. This year the Lutheran League also formed a choir which sings at the St. John's Lutheran Church in Russellville.
The Newman Club is an organization of Catholic students on the Tech campus. The major function of this club is to aid the Catholic students enrolled in secular schools in developing their faith and enriching their spiritual life.

Newman Clubs have been organized on over five hundred campuses of universities and colleges throughout the United States. The primary purpose of all these clubs is to promote the religious development of the members of the club, to further their education through continued study and discussion of their religion, and to provide a variety of common social experiences for the Catholic students enrolled in such secular schools.

The club frequently invites guest speakers to attend their meetings. The main purpose of these speakers is to keep the Catholic student body informed on the current happenings in the church.

Newman Club members have a breakfast in the St. John's Catholic Church assembly hall following a Mass. Women of the church help prepare the breakfast.

The Baptist Student Union has grown since World War II from one-night-a-week meetings of fellowship and business in the basement of the Home Economics Building to a full schedule of year-round activities in its own building, which houses the combination worship-recreation area.

The First Baptist Church of Russellville and interested friends built the Center in 1951 and the daily worship services and other activities were moved from Williamson Hall to the front half of the present building.

In keeping with the philosophy and objectives of the denomination's program of ministering to college students, plans are now being made to build a larger, better-planned, permanent Baptist Student Center.

For the benefit of all Arkansas Tech students, The Baptist Student Center is open daily until late evening hours for recreation, study, and meditation, and a group-worship period is maintained immediately following the evening meal. Membership is open to all students.

Baptist Student Union members receive coffee and doughnuts each Sunday morning before they are taken to Church.

A library with emphasis on religion is provided at the BSU with many students putting it to good use.

Many leisure hours are spent at the BSU with chess being one of the many games that is provided for use.

John Easeley brings the devotional message to members of the Baptist Student Union at one of the daily vesper services.
WESLEY FOUNDATION

Wesley Foundation is defined as "The Methodist Church at work on the campuses of state and independent colleges and universities." The purpose of this organization is to "deepen, enrich and mature the Christian faith of college youth."

The Foundation serves the total needs of students of any religious persuasion who wish to avail themselves of the facilities and program which the foundation sponsors.

"Wesley House," as the Methodist Student Center is known, is the scene of many social, educational and religious activities. Members participate in Sunday morning and evening services, interest groups in the Fine Arts, and fellowship teams. In cooperation with other religious groups on campus the Wesley Foundation aids in the annual campus-wide Easter and Thanksgiving services.

The new Methodist Student Center welcomes all students to join in fellowship under its roof. Evening vesper services, Sunday School along with a breakfast snack, and other endeavors in religion are carried out by the Methodist Students.
Sunday morning worship services, led by the students, are very impressive in this beautiful chapel. Chris Meyers is leading the group in services. Following the Sunday morning session here, the students are taken to the downtown church for worship.

The Wesley house provides comfortable home surroundings and privileges for any Arkansas Tech student.

After seeing a film, members of Circle K discuss future plans for their organization. Among the projects which they decided to sponsor, was a series of lectures on opportunities in this area. Ed Henderson presided over the meeting.

CIRCLE K

The Circle K Club of Arkansas Tech is one of the newest clubs on campus. Organized at the end of last year, Circle K is a service organization and is sponsored by Kiwanis. Like Kiwanis, Circle K operates internationally, and there are clubs throughout the United States and Canada. Although it has just been organized, the Tech Circle K Club was represented at the International Convention held at Norfolk, Virginia. Later in the year the club gained further distinction when Grover Par­tee was nominated for International Trustee.

Membership in Circle K is open to any male student who possesses leadership qualities and a strong desire to serve his college, community, and nation. Presently the club membership consists of twenty students who represent a cross-section of the student body with regards to background, interests, and future ambitions. Any student may join by gaining the endorsement of two members and then petitioning the club for admission. Membership offers students an opportunity to render altruistic service while developing individual capacities for leadership and self betterment.

Members of Kappa Pi are proud of their charter which they received this year. Pres. Stewart and Wilwers hold the charter.

KAPPA PI

This year the Artist’s and Designers Guild received a charter as Kappa Pi. To receive this charter the club had to meet certain requirements. Among these requirements are that the club had to keep complete records of all it’s activities during the preceding year, they had to prove their proficiency in their artistic work and they had to petition the organization for membership. This petition included a letter from President Hull, a complete history of the club and a complete history of Arkansas Polytechnic College, and a list of candidates for membership.

Membership in this club is limited to those students who are majoring in art and who have maintained a 3.00 average in all of their courses.

The purpose of Kappa Pi is to render service to the college wherever artistic work is needed.

The charter was granted during the spring semester of this year, therefore the club hasn’t had the opportunity to accomplish very much. Kappa Pi did assist the Student Life Committee in organizing an exhibit from the National Galleries in Washington.
MENC

The Music Educator National Conference is an organization of the Tech music department for majors who plan to teach music as a profession.

The purpose of this organization is to provide the student with a better understanding of the problems confronting the music educator and foster the students' actual participation in programs, demonstrations, discussions and performing groups.

Activities of this club during the school year include informal seminars to acquaint the students with the professional side of music and the leaders in their respective fields. This year MENC held an exchange assembly with State Teachers College and participated in the state convention in Little Rock.

The MENC maintains a bulletin board on which literature promoting interest in music education are posted. This serves as a mode of communication between music majors and non-majors who are active in the field of music.

Interested music majors gather, for a closer look, around the harpsichord which belongs to a visiting folksinging team.

These MENC members seem to be pleased with the discussion of Vincent Persichetti following his appearance with the band.
Nine pledges in Kappa Kappa Psi pose for their picture in the club's new meeting room on the top floor of Williamson. The pledges are required to work.

President Bob Nelson cheerfully calls the Kappa Kappa Psi meeting to order with two of his other officers standing by.

KAPPA KAPPA PSI

Kappa Kappa Psi is a national honorary band fraternity. Members are selected on the basis of musicianship, leadership, and academic standing. The general purpose of the national fraternity is to promote a better understanding of music and to create a sense of brotherhood among college bandmen over the nation.

Delta Delta chapter has seen in 1963-1964 its most active and productive year since its charter was granted in 1958. Some of its many activities include: pep bands for pep rallies; signs for games; care and order of band facilities, adoption of an official dress, formal and informal; and raising funds for general band activities.

The highlight of the year's activities was the restoration and dedication of a room for the fraternity's meetings and ceremonies. The room was dedicated to Gene Witherspoon, Chairman of the Fine Arts Division.

The fraternity assumes a role of leadership in all of the activities concerning the department of music.
The Beta Nu chapter of Tau Beta Sigma on the Tech campus is composed of outstanding Tech bandswomen. Organized in 1958, Tau Beta Sigma strives to promote the welfare of the college band and to honor skilled musicians. New members are inducted to the organization after a four-week pledge period, during which pledges perform various tasks for the regular members, such as picking dandelions, selling toothpicks, and guarding the various campus buildings.

Tau Beta Sigma members are easily recognized by their white blazers showing the Tau Beta Sigma crests. These girls are responsible for behavior of the bandswomen and have a representative to AWS and to the committee governing the activities of the band. Tau Beta Sigma members spend many hours in the band music library filing, sorting, and cataloging the band literature. This organization keeps in touch with the many Tech band alumni and informs them of the band’s performances and honors. Their most invaluable service is in being “big sisters” to new bandswomen.
Many groups are formed and harmonize beautifully as they present many colorful and fun ballads at the Folklore concerts.

President Jon Buntenbah explains the purpose of the Pre-Law and Political Science Club to some members.

PRE LAW CLUB

The Political Science and Pre-Law Club was reorganized this year from the old Pre-Law Club. The membership of this club is composed of those students who are majoring in political science or pre-law. This year the club has been primarily interested in exhibiting possible candidates for the approaching gubernatorial race.

The purpose of this club is two-fold: to provide interesting and informative programs for its members in their fields of study and to stimulate an interest within the student body in the field of political science and pre-law. These aims are accomplished through programs which feature well-known guest speakers, such as Representative Hardy Croxton and Governor Faubus.

The club's activities are climaxed during the first weekend in May by Law Day. This is an informal group of meetings open to pre-law majors which takes place on the campus of the University of Arkansas.

Informal discussions are held quite frequently by the club's members with an occasional assist by one of the club's sponsors.
